About Bhagalpur

Bhagalpur is a historic city located on the southern bank of the river Ganga in Bihar, India, and is widely known as the Silk City for its famous Tussar silk industry. The city blends rich cultural heritage with growing educational and commercial importance, making it a significant center in eastern Bihar. Surrounded by religious, archaeological, and natural attractions like Mandar Hills, Ancient Vikramshila University, Ajgaibinath Temple, Bhagalpur offers a unique combination of tradition and modern development while continuing to play an important role in trade, tourism, and regional growth. Its residents value community life, craftsmanship, and the timeless connection between the river, markets, and learning institutions. This identity shapes everyday culture and future aspirations locally.
